NHC-Kennett Makes Donation to Library

The Dunklin County Library recently purchased book markers with funds donated to the library from National Health Care in Kennett.

The book markers are made of a plastic material with measurement rulers on either side. The book markers also work as a magnifier for the patron to read even the smallest of print.

“ We are grateful to NHC for the kind donation and incredibly proud of the book markers we were able to purchase with the donation. We believe the book markers will be a great way for our older patrons to enjoy their books,” Library Director, JoNell Minton stated

Families and friends of the two men will gather to celebrate their achievements and what they have brought to their communities and livelihoods they have worked.

Once the ceremony comes to a close, refreshments will be served in the lobby of the Dunklin County Library in Kennett.

From The Library Archives

Book Discussion

For the month of November, the Book Discussion Group has chosen John Grisham's "The Whistler."

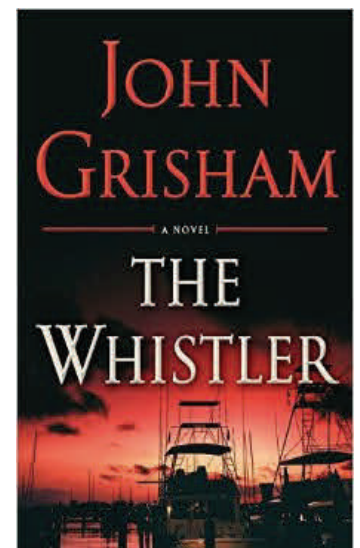

The book follows Lacy Stoltz, a fictitious character who in the novel is an investigative lawyer for the Florida Board on Judicial Conduct and Greg Myers, a lawyer who once was disbarred is now back in business with a new identity. The story takes readers into the judicial process and what happens when a corrupt judge is "secretly involved with the construction of a large casino on Native American Island."

While Greg wants to end the charade, Lacy is assigned the case.

The Library currently has four copies available for check out, with a large print edition and audio book version on order.

Book Discussion Group will meet November 29 at 7 p.m.
